

Nowadays, most people carry their cell phone with them. It changes the way we communicate, anytime, anywhere. With CareRinger, you can check in with your cell phone as well, at home or when you are out and about. It works the same way. Your trusted contact will get the notifications only if the call is not answered.

At the time of your choosing, CareRinger will call you one or more times. If you miss the first call, it will try again to make sure. There is no rush.

Just set your voicemail to wait at least 20 seconds or more before it picks up any call for you, and never let your voicemail answer your check-in calls for you. Your phone provider should be able to help you with that.

At times, you may want CareRinger to suspend your check-in calls until later, when you are ready for the calls again. It's like calling the post office to hold on to your mail when you are away. Whichever way you choose, CareRinger makes it easy for you.

To test, you can call our service number to start a check-in call. Or you can check-in early.

When CareRinger calls you, do not answer the call the first time it rings

CareRinger will call you again

When CareRinger calls you, do not answer the calls at all

Your trusted contact will get the notification

Call the CHECK IN EARLY number one hour before CareRinger calls you. When connected, press 9 to let CareRinger know you check in now (This is an option)

CareRinger will not call you again this time

Grandma has her check-in call scheduled for 10am every day. Instead of waiting for the call, she calls the service number to check in early. CareRinger knows not to call her at 10am this time, until the next day. It's that simple.

About me: Henry is a former-telecommunications professional, now attending to the needs of elderly people. For years, he has been teaching senior-friendly technologies in his local communities. He is an inventor and Founder of CareRinger Inc., and holds patents on methods that apply to his service. He is currently a Conejo Vally Senior Volunteer Program Advisory Board member and a former commissioner for the Council on Aging in the City of Thousand Oaks ('21-'23).

CareRinger is a Dementia Friendly Organization

www.CareRinger.com